The No Child Left Behind Act impacts several initiatives for the improvement of education in the United States. Title I, Improving the Academic Achievement of the Disadvantaged, proposes its foremost initiative entitled Improving Basic Programs Operated by LEA's (NCLB; Title I, Section A) and is the highest federally funded program by the United States government. The program encourages flexibility in funding to high-need schools that will allow them to implement programs to better train their staff and professionals, introduce an assessment form for accountability for the success of their students, focuses on scientifically researched teaching methods, and increases the power parents have over selecting the public school that their child is allowed to attend. The overall goal of the program is to improve the performance of students and teachers...bringing students' academic performance up to the rigorous state standards by helping students who are not proficient in English and students under-performing in all subject areas, but particularly in language arts, reading, and mathematics.
